By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fayetteville registered a bottom reading on 19, Pippin 20, Fayetteville 21, Walnut Ridge 25, Fort Smith 26, Pine Bluff 27, El Dorado 28, Little Rock 31 and Texarkana 35.
The U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said Mountain Home and Calico Rock in the north portion of Arkansas had traces of snow in the 24-hour period which ended at 6 a. m. today. No other precipitation was reported.

Court Rules Against Commissioner

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court today upheld an injunction prohibiting utility commissioners at West Memphis from spending public funds with firms in which they have an interest.
The 5-2 decision held that Cecil U. Edmonds, a former city employee, had a right to bring suit against the commissioners as a utility user.

A dissenting opinion by Justice F. D. McFadden disagreed with this utility commission alleging finding by the majority. Chief Justice Carlton Harris joined in the dissent.

Edmonds brought suit against the utility commission alleging that commissioners were doing business with firms in which they held an interest. Edmonds asked that the five commissioners be enjoined from assessing and collecting utility bills and from doing business with themselves and that he (Edmonds) be given authority to inspect commission records.

Crittenden Chancellor Lee Ward declined to enjoin the commission from collecting bills and the lower court was affirmed on this point. The Supreme Court earlier had ruled Edmonds had no right to inspect the records.

The Supreme Court said it was in the practice of sustaining the discretion of lower courts in issuing injunctions unless it could be proved the lower court had abused its discretion in the matter. The court found no abuse of discretion in the Edmonds case.

In a Miller County case, the high court upheld a chancery court decree voiding certain oil leases between the Skelly Oil Co. and the Winnie Smith Estate.

Smith's heirs contended Skelly had made no effort to find oil or gas on 200 acres of a 360-acre tract leased by Skelly from Smith in 1943. After Smith died, his heirs leased the 280 acres to Monroe Seagings and Seagings filed suit to void Skelly's lease.

The high court said a preponderance of the evidence showed Skelly made no effort to drill for oil and the company's announced intention of doing so was not enough to save the lease after Seagings filed suit.

Garland Chancery Court was affirmed in a holding that Minnie Antrim is the owner of certain properties also claimed by J. A. McElroy.

McElroy's son, Scotty, sold a house belonging to his father to Minnie Antrim and began paying rent on it. Later, Scotty moved and J. A. McElroy continued to live in the house and to pay rent. When J. A. McElroy got behind in his rent payments and was threatened with eviction, he brought suit to void the sale made by Scotty.

The high court held that J. A. McElroy's action in paying rent for a while was, in effect, an endorsement of the sale contract executed by his son.

The Supreme Court reversed a Garland Chancery Court decree which held Bertha Heller of New York had no interest in the estate of her father, Milton Heller, who died in Hot Springs in 1957.

Miss Heller filed suit against the estate of her father, Milton Heller, and the executor of his estate, Miss Heller contended the estate was an antitrust contract, executed by her father and the executor of his estate, which agreed to waive any right to any estate of the father.

The high court and the chancery court held that this contract had been voided at the time of Heller's death and the Supreme Court took the opposite view.

Long Ticket Voted Out in Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6 (AP)—DeLesseps Morrison, tireless New Orleans mayor, and Jimmie Davis, singing former governor, today began a five-week runoff race for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Both ignored Gov. Earl K. Long, a lame duck after voters in Saturday's primary turned a cold shoulder to him.

The showdown for the two high candidates in the record 11-man race will be in the second primary on Jan. 9.

Louisiana rejected Long's attempt to pick as his successor former Gov. James A. Noe, old friend of the late Huey P. Long. Voters gave Long no better than third place in his bid for the lieutenant governor's post.

4 Rescued But Child Dies in Texarkana Fire

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP)—Arless Rowton, who happened by on a visit when fire broke out in Mrs. Bethel Pant's house, rescued her and her three children. Then he went back for a fourth child.

"I crawled in on my hands and knees and called her name but she wouldn't answer," Rowton told authorities.

Outside, Mrs. Pant wanted anxiously with the children who were saved — Mabel Jean, Carol Sue and Tommy James. Mrs. Pant, a widow, had to be restrained from flailing back inside to get her missing daughter, Zandra Elaine.

The fire yesterday, which broke out in the children's room in a front room, spread through the small frame house.

Rowton could not find Zandra. Finally the intense heat and flames drove him out.

When firemen arrived, Chief Frank Matthews said, the house was in ruins. Poking through the debris they came across a blackened wall heater. Behind it was the remains of the missing child. The girl, Matthews said, apparently had been in confusion and had crawled behind the heater. She lay hidden as the flames covered the house and Rowton hunted in vain.

Lions Need Help of All Citizens

Last year the Hope Lions Club distributed over 100 baskets to needy families with funds raised in the 1958 Auction. President W. L. Tate, says the need is equally as great or greater this year and the club's project will need full support of every citizen in this area.

Businessmen of this area donate cash and merchandise to be auctioned and it is up to the public to buy the merchandise to help those who are in need. Mr. Tate said that the Lions Club wants every purchaser to be happy with their delivered merchandise. If, for any reason, the purchaser feels that the merchandise is not as represented on the auction, he or she can return the merchandise when delivered. Lion Kinard Young is in charge of the committee procuring the merchandise and it is carefully catalogued as to actual value and accurate description. Young said that the merchandise donated this year is the finest in the history of the auction.

Thunderous Reception Given Ike by Million Persons in Pakistan

Raps Professions That Ban All Advertising But Break Necks to Get Free Publicity

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Ellis W. Ramsey of Beebe, president of the Arkansas Press Assn., declared today that certain professions ban paid advertising and "then break their collective and individual necks to secure free advertising."

Ramsey, in an address prepared for delivery to the Little Rock Advertising Club, said he was talking about physicians, attorneys, architects, dentists and optometrists among others.

"These professions live by a strict code of ethics, one so strict in fact that they do not wish to lower themselves by advertising," Ramsey said.

"But," he asked, "do they really detect advertising?"

Ramsey said to be consistent the title of "doctor" should be omitted in news articles.

Or else, he said, other persons should be identified as "farmer Jones, plumber Thompson, banker Montgomery" and the like.

The legal profession can't legally advertise but newspapers "may" use lawyers' names in connection with lawsuits or take photographs of them outside courtrooms, Ramsey said.

"And architects can't advertise," said Ramsey, who is publisher of the Beebe News and Bald Knob Banner.

"But they resent it if we don't run a picture of a new building they have designed and use their names in the caption."

Ramsey said the non-advertising professional groups and their families "usually dominate a community" and otherwise keep their names in print through civic, religious and patriotic activities.

The 1959 model Piper Apache had completed about two-thirds of its flight which normally required 35 minutes. It was last heard from at 4:34 p. m. Sunday, 15 minutes after takeoff from Greiner.

Drug Markup Fantastic in One Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee said today that one drug house took a 1,100 per cent markup in the wholesale price of a new medicine derived from codfish.

However, the company's president answered that the subcommittee's figures did not take into account many cost items which were essential in the drug business.

The testimony came as the subcommittee opened a broad study of drug industry wholesale prices.

The inquiry began with a suggestion by Sen. Smathers (D-Fla.) that the prices were too high. This drew a prompt denial from Francis C. Brown, president of the Schering Corp. of Bloomfield, N.J., that his firm is charging too much.

The first drug on which the subcommittee's staff presented figures was a derivative of cortisone developed by Schering.

Marketed under the trade name, Meticortelone, it is used to treat such ailments as arthritis and asthma.

The subcommittee experts said they had constructed a production cost of 1.5 cents for one tablet of the drug, or $1.57 a hundred, compared to a wholesale price of 12.9 cents per tablet, and a proposed price to the consumer of 29.5 cents. They said this did not include selling and distribution costs. This was a 1,118 per cent markup in the wholesale price and 1,366 per cent markup to the user.

Brown said he would have a check the subcommittee's figures but that he would accept them for the basis of the discussion.

Smathers contended the prices of newly developed wonder drugs place them beyond the financial reach of many persons of low or average income and that some medicine produced in this country cost many times as much as similar preparations sold abroad.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), the subcommittee chairman, emphasized that his group is interested only in wholesale prices. He said no effort would be made to determine whether retail profit margins in drug stores are too excessive, because that would be determined by the testimony.

Welcome Best Ever Accorded Foreign Visitor

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—A million cheering Pakistanis — by official estimate — gave President Eisenhower today the most thunderous reception ever accorded a foreign visitor.

Shouting, waving people packed the streets and the roads from the airport as Eisenhower arrived from Turkey on the third stop of his 22,000-mile mission of peace.

The President was deeply moved by the outpouring of affection and called the welcome "tremendous," said James C. Hagerly, White House press secretary.

Greeting with delight, the American President stood erect in the back of a white convertible and waved to the colorfully clad Pakistanis jam-packed along his route into Pakistan's largest city.

Each time the American visitor waved his hat, the crowds responded with delighted cheers of welcome.

"Eisenhower zindabad!" — "long life to Eisenhower!" — the vast throngs roared over and over.

The teeming city of two million was festooned for carnival. The Stars and Stripes and Pakistan's green and white crescent banner waved on all sides, from poles and triumphal arches. A host of streamers, of every color of the rainbow, added to the brilliance of the scene.

Karachi definitely was happy to see Ike, "AM-TE" to the city and its people.

"Thousands of Pakistanis pushed and shoved their way into the broad corner square near the U.S. Embassy where the President and his host, President Mohammed Ayub Khan, changed from the automobile to a stately red and gold presidential coach drawn by six spanking black horses. Then the majestic, slow procession made its way to the presidential residence, where Eisenhower will make his headquarters for his 40-hour stay.

Karachi was strong with colored lights on all sides. As night fell, it looked like a city adorned for Christmas.

McDonald's told newsmen McDonald's absence wasn't making the government's job of trying to settle the marathon steel dispute any easier.

Finnegan quickly added how ever that he wasn't criticizing McDonald because he understood the union has other contract problems.

Ailes said McDonald and Arthur J. Goldberg, union counsel, were meeting with the bargaining team assigned negotiations in the can industry.

Workers represented by the union in both the can and aluminum industries are working under extensions of old contracts, soon to expire.

The steel talks will be further complicated, Finnegan noted, by negotiations due to take place next week in Chicago between the union and the aluminum industry.

John H. Morse, attorney for Bethlehem Steel Corp., was also absent from this morning's joint steel session. Morse is a regular member of a steel industry four-man negotiating team.

Attack on Pearl Harbor 18 Years Ago

By GENE KRAMER

TOKYO (AP) — The attack on Pearl Harbor 18 years ago today was "a risky enterprise" that if detected earlier might have cost Japan half its fleet, says Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese ambassador to Washington at the time.

The former admiral and diplomat in an interview called Japan's war membership and attack on America great blunders. He said they were "forced on our responsibility" by the young, audacious elements.

Nomura likened these elements — rightists and military extremists — of the prewar period to pre-fading left-wing radicals now agitating for Japan to scrap its U.S. alliance.

Only 15 days ago about 700 persons were pictured in a clash between police and youthful demonstrators against revision of the U.S.-Japan alliance.

Now 82, Nomura is healthy and active as a conservative member of Parliament and president of a nonpartisan firm.

"Those who wanted us to get on Hitler's and Mussolini's bus made a mistake," Nomura declared. "Now, others say Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung are moving along. But I feel there is only one road for us (the West). Japan should not repeat its mistakes."

Nomura once again noted that he had advance knowledge of the Pearl Harbor attack.

Calls for All Co-ops to Stay 'Powerful'

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An attorney for the Arkansas Electric Co-operative Assn. today called for co-ops to stay "alert and powerful."

Remarks by the attorney, Leander Leatherman of Little Rock, at the annual directors meeting of the organization struck some observers as a hint that new action may develop in the public vs. private power battle.

Leatherman said Arkansas power & Light Co. already has told the co-ops it wants to boost the rate for power it sells them from 4.4 to 7.37 mills.

"That's a pretty good jump," he said.

AP&L is the cheapest power source for the co-ops at present. They paid the utility $1,200,000 for power in 1958, the attorney said, but the proposed increase would push the cost for the same amount of power to $1,800,000.

"And if they try to get a fuel clause tacked on so that our cost would automatically increase as their fuel costs increase," Leatherman added, "you can figure the rate would really jump the total to nearly two million dollars."

Leatherman said the cost of AP&L's fuel, purchased from Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., will rise during the next 10 years by about one-third.

He reminded co-op officials that a few years ago, AP&L asked the Public Service Commission to include a fuel cost clause in co-op contracts but were turned down.

The attorney repeatedly urged co-ops to be "constantly alert and stay strong" because "somebody, say somebody like AP&L, might try to get some regulations in legislation from this morning's joint session. Morse is a regular member of a steel industry four-man negotiating team."

They tried to get was that a co-op

New Center to Take Trainees by July

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) —

Don Russell, director of the Arkansas Vocational Rehabilitation division, says the proposed new regional rehabilitation center here may be ready to accept trainees by next July 1.

Russell said in an interview that the facility, being converted from the Army-Navy Hospital, will be known as the "Hot Springs Rehabilitation Center."

He estimated that $500,000 will be spent over a three-year period for construction and equipment alone in the conversion.

The Arkansas Legislative Council on Nov. 21 approved an initial outlay of $102,486 in state funds to open the proposed center. Federal money will make up the lion's share of operating costs.

couldn't serve anybody more than a mile from an already existing line.

Leatherman said explorations were continuing in regard to a possible steam generating plant to serve co-ops in north Arkansas and some of the western area of the state.

Directors meetings last through tomorrow. Speeches are scheduled by Douglas Wright, administrator of the Southwest Power Administration, and Harry T. Oswald, general manager of Arkansas Electric Co-operatives.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

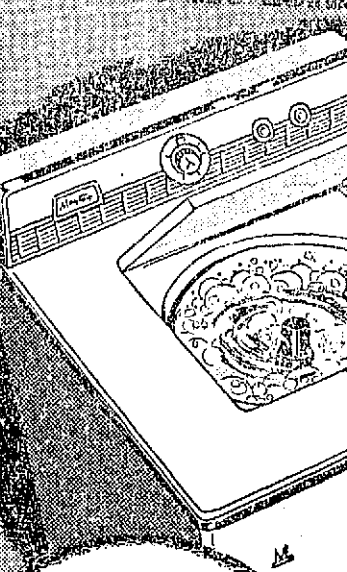

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements: "I have ceased to be a hemorrhoid sufferer (Bio-Dyne)." "I am a world-famous research scientist in suppository or ointment under the name (Bio-Dyne)." "At your druggist. Money guaranteed."

Smokey Says:

Trees are useful in many, many ways! Please protect them!

Family quarrels are devastating for all concerned. The sooner you take a stand the better.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I would like to get along with my daughter but I can't. She is high strung and wants her way. Her father is the same. This is a strain on me. I could manage with him as the worst is over, but now it is the girl. In high school she was a nice person, but since she works she has changed. If things aren't just as she wants them, she flies into a temper and screams. How should I meet these tantrums? — Someone-Who-is-trying.

Dear Someone-Who-is-trying: No one has the right to destroy another's peace of mind, be it within or without the family circle. If your daughter is to get on in this world she should first learn to get along with others, beginning with her own family. To let her tantrums pass unchallenged is no kindness to her. Speak up. It won't be easy. By putting up with her father's ill-temper, you've evidently set the pattern. Reverse your thinking. As a wife and mother you are entitled to certain things, not the least of which is respect from your husband and daughter. Say so. You'll be surprised to find how easy it is if right is on your side. And it is in this case. Take charge for a change!

Dear Dorothy Dix: My mother and Dad are very fair except in the question of an allowance for me. I am 15 and in

I don't know where to turn. My mother and I simply cannot get along. It's making me sick all over. I have an aged aunt who lives for me. She would be terribly worried if I left home, so I must consider her. I am 30 years old but have never been able to do everything the way my mother wants it done. It's okay. I can not go to another part of the house without being nagged about burning extra electricity, yet I pay all the expenses.

We had another scene yesterday. My mother tells me all the many things she finds wrong with me. All my life I've tried so hard to please her and failed. I tossed and turned all night long praying and hoping that our last quarrel had all been a bad dream but it wasn't. I am hardly able to drag myself to work. What can I do? — Desperate.

Dear Desperate: There is always a way to turn. In fact there are usually several ways. If we think our problems through. The next time your mother starts ranting, say nothing. Instead, drop whatever you happen to be doing, put on your hat and coat and walk out. Go to some place such as a library or museum where you can think in peace and quiet.

Your letter reminds me of a lecture I once heard. It was given by the late Christian Gauss, dean of Princeton. The topic was, "Man never has to must." And it's true! It isn't that you must remain in your home. You stay because you don't want to hurt your aunt whom you love. There is nothing to prevent you from leaving.

Realization of this will enable you to face your mother with more equanimity. There is only one way to handle her ill-temper. Assert yourself. You should have done it long ago for her good as well as yours. If she still keeps up her carping, find a home elsewhere. I don't believe this will be as hard on your aunt as you fear.

grade 10. At school we buy our lunch which amounts to $1.75 a week, so I asked for $2.00.

They thought it would be better to give me 35 cents a day. I have one brother who now is married and he always got a small allowance about the same as I asked for. Are my parents unfair? — L. A. S.

Dear L. A. S.: If you want money, you should earn it, not ask for it. I earned pin-money when I was your age and had fun doing it. But before I tell you how, let me tell you what I tell all children. Big and little, who ask me the same question you're asking: Your parents' clothes, house, food and educate you — which in itself is a great deal. To ask them to do more, is taking advantage of their love for you; and no matter how small or large the sum of money, it's wrong in principle. I may have been more conscious of this than other children, for my mother was a widow and we lived on what she earned as a writer. So instead of asking her for an allowance, I decided to earn some money myself. There were plenty of old ladies in our neighborhood who didn't have the strength to air their dogs. I exercised the poodles at 25 cents a run. Before I knew it, I was making about $4 a week and having the time of my life.

If this isn't practical for you, there are other ways to earn pin-money. Go to the store for busy mothers or the elderly. Read about to submit. I did that for old Senator Call of Florida who could no longer see to read but wanted to brush up on his his-

Bobcats Come Through in First 2 Games

Hope's Senior Boys and Senior Girls basketball teams won two games from Lewisville at Jones Field House Saturday night.

The Bobcats topped the visiting Red Devils by a score of 41 to 29. In the girls game the Lady Cats won 37 to 33.

In the boys game Coach Sevier platooned his first and second units by quarters and kept the tempo at a fast pace. The Cats pulled out to a 10 point advantage at half time and maintained it throughout.

Terry Arnette was high scorer for the Bobcats with 7 points. The point spread of scorers was well distributed with Thurman, Smiley and Walton getting 6 each, while Walters picked up 5 Vaughn 4, Churchwell and Robison three each and Duke 2.

Lewisville's Parker was high for both teams with 12; while Landers scored 7 for the visitors.

Coch Gordon Beasley's Lady Cats engaged in a nip and tuck affair with only a point or two separating the teams throughout. Hope pulled away to a 4 point margin in the closing minutes on foul shots.

The Lady Cats leading scorers were Messer with 14, England 12, and Mitchell 11.

May scored 24 points to lead Lewisville an arm in the games top scoring performance.

Tuesday night the Bobcats play at Saratoga and next Friday night both the senior boys and girls play a return engagement with the Red Devils at Lewisville. On the local court Tuesday night the Junior Varsity and Senior Girls play teams from Saratoga here, starting at 7 p.m.

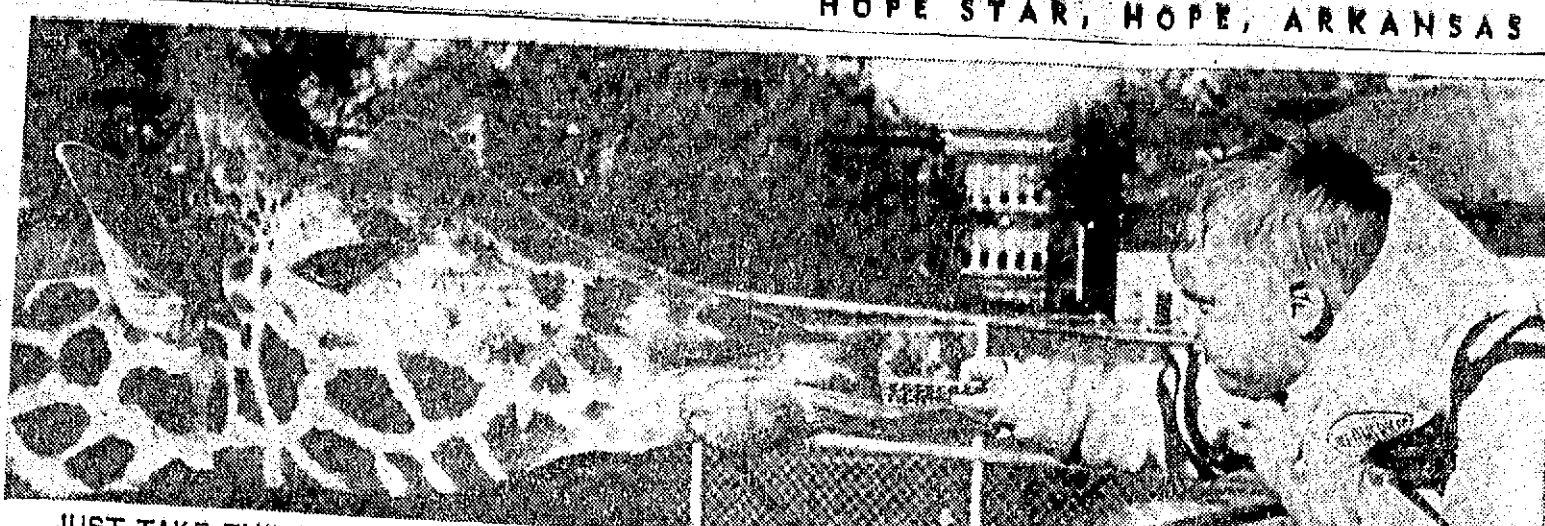

Coach Billy Mitchell's Juniors journey to Texarkana Tuesday afternoon to play the strong Jefferson Avenue Junior High five.

Porkers Down Oklahoma State Five

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas, shocked out of an 11-point lead, contained by a surge by Oklahoma State, contained the Cowboys and took a 54-50 basketball victory Saturday night.

It was a good win for the Hogs — their first over the 'Pokes since 1944.

The game was easy-going until the last two minutes. Arkansas had a 51-42 lead midway in the second half but the Cowboys suddenly turned on the steam and 10-

Conerly Leads Giants Over the Browns

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

A shrewd Mississippi, his good-looking sidekick and a 230 pound one-man wrecking crew comprise the key trio for the New York Giants, Eastern Conference champions in the National Football League for the second consecutive year.

The clever Mississippi is quarterback Charlie Conerly, who revitalized a non-existent Giant attack with his pin-point passing and first-rate signal calling in the last three games en route to the Eastern crown.

The final measure of Conerly's success—after returning from an ankle injury that sidelined him while the Giants floundered—came Sunday when he passed for three touchdowns and engineered a 48-7 rout of the Cleveland Browns to wrap up the title.

The good-looking is Hallback Frank Gifford, Hollywood-bound with a movie contract when he leaves pro football. Gifford, the main cog in New York's ground game, poured it out against the Browns. He scored twice and packing away 175 yards running and pass receiving.

The wrecker is middle linebacker Sam Huff. His job was to stop Jimmy Brown, Huff handed Cleveland's league-leading ground gainers so effectively he gained only 50 yards in 15 tries. Brown has been averaging over a 100 a game.

While the Giants won in the move up to narrow it 51-50. Then Pat Foster sunk a goal for the Hogs and Ron Garner added a free throw.

Foster played a top floor game and made 12 points. Alan Morrison, a 6-7 sophomore, hit for 10. Eddie Bunch collected 12 for Oklahoma State and Henry Iba, son of OSU Coach Hank Iba, got

East and started looking toward a replay of last year's championship game with Baltimore, the defending champion Colts clinched a tie for the crown in the Western Division.

Led by quarterback Johnny Unitas, who set an NFL record for most TD passes in one season, the Colts won their showdown battle for first place with San Francisco as they defeated the 49ers 34-14 in a Saturday game.

The Colts lead the 49ers and Chicago Bears by one game with one left to play. The Bears moved into a tie for the runner-up spot Sunday by beating Pittsburgh 27-21 for their sixth straight win.

In other games Sunday, Philadelphia took over second place in the East with a 34-14 thumping of Washington. Detroit clubbed Chicago's Cardinals 45-21 and Green Bay defeated Los Angeles 33-20.

The Giants (9-2), administering the second worst beating in Cleveland history, rolled up their best point total in five years for their fifth straight decision over the Browns into third place with the Browns in third place with a 6-5 record.

Conerly the 38-year-old veteran pitched TD tosses of 32, 19 and 2 yards to Gifford, Kyle Rote and Bob Schneider, respectively. Gifford also scored another on a two-yard smash. Pat Summerall, New York's placekicker and the NFL's top scorer, kicked two field goals and four conversions to bring his total to 34 points.

Unitas spiraled seven and 13-yard passes to Ray Berry for TDs clicked with a 64-yarder to Lenny Moore for another and tallied once himself on a 12-yard scamper. Unitas now has 29 touchdowns passes for the season, one more than Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears accounted for during a 10-game schedule in 1943.

The Colts (8-3) meet Los Angeles next Saturday, needing a tie or victory to clinch the crown. The 49ers and Bears, both 4-4, must beat Green Bay and Detroit, respectively, while Baltimore loses to create a three-way tie.

Rick Casares scored four touchdowns on short plunges as the Bears sped to an early lead, then had to brace for a final surge by the upset-minded Steelers (5-1). Bobby Layne's tossing moved Pittsburgh to the 7 with 19 seconds to go, but four passes failed.

Norm Van Brocklin connected with Tommy McDonald on 35, 61 and 36 yard scoring aerials as the Redskins (7-4) romped against the Packers (6-5) pinned it on the hapless Rams (2-9), who have lost seven straight.

The Lions (3-7) went with Tom Riffe as their starting quarterback and a punt off. He passed for one touchdown and ran for another as Detroit (2-7) halfhearted over the cards (2-4).

Paul Hogue hit Bud Dwyer with touchdown passes of 29 and 20 yards and kicked a 23-yard field goal and five conversions as the Packers (6-5) pinned it on the hapless Rams (2-9), who have lost seven straight.

Powers Fall in First Round of College Play

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

One week doesn't make a season, but two might—particularly the next two for the likes of St. Louis, West Virginia, Ohio State, North Carolina and Indiana in major college basketball.

The season, just a week old, finds suspected powers Kentucky, Kansas State, North Carolina State and Louisville already beaten. Now all four put the test to the rest.

St. Louis, unbeaten in three games that included road decisions over St. John's (NY) and K-State, has the toughest job in the next two weeks, even though two of the four games in that span will be played on the Billikens' home court. North Carolina (1-0) doesn't figure to have things easy either.

The Bills, beating K-State 67-58 last Saturday for the Wildcats' first home defeat since 1937, play Ohio State Wednesday and Kentucky Saturday at St. Louis. Next week they jump into the University of Kentucky Invitation Tournament against so far unbeaten West Virginia plus North Carolina and host Kentucky.

Before North Carolina, which opened with a 93-56 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over South Carolina last Saturday, gets to the tournament at Lexington, Ky., the Tar Heels join NC State in a Friday-Saturday doubleheader with Kansas and Kansas State at Raleigh.

North Carolina plays Kansas Friday while NC State, surprised by Wake Forest 73-59, plays K-State. The two Carolina schools then swap foes on Saturday.

Kansas, which opened with a 76-67 victory at Northwestern last Saturday, is at home against Texas Tech (1-1) tonight in a heavy schedule that pairs unbeaten in Butler-Ohio State, Indiana-Missouri, Houston-Texas A. & M. and New Mexico State-Utah.

California, the NCAA champion, breezed at expected against the school's Santa Barbara branch, 59-47 last Friday and goes against San Francisco (0-2) Tuesday night. West Virginia (4-0), the NCAA runner-up, plays Richmond in a Southern Conference game Tuesday.

Southern California, after dropping two games by a total of five points to UCLA and Santa Clara, knocked off Kentucky 87-73 Saturday.

Georgia Tech (3-0) spilled Louisville 68-50. The Cardinals now play Eastern Kentucky (Thursday) and Davidson (Saturday) before meeting Cincinnati next week.

Cincinnati, 2-0 after whipping Marshall 102-61 Saturday as Oscar Robertson, again playing only part time, scored 45 points, plays Miami (Ohio) tonight. West Virginia's Jerry West, paired with Robertson as the only returning All-Americans this season, scored 18 points in 27 minutes as the Mountaineers walked off Purdue 99-63 for their 32nd consecutive Southern Conference success.

As for tonight's unbeaten foes, Ohio State (3-0) beat Pitt 94-40 Saturday while Butler (3-0) defeated Little Wabash 82-55. Indiana (1-0), picked to top the Big Ten, handled Ball State with expected ease, 102-63 and Missouri (2-0) spilled Arkansas, a possible Southwest Conference threat, 75-51 in a Friday game.

Houston (3-0) defeated McMurray 92-51 while Texas A. & M. (2-0) beat Trinity (Tex.) 86-46. New Mexico State handed San Francisco a 72-63 setback and Utah opened with a 104-80 job on Los Angeles States.

When to Fish or Hunt Solunar Tables

By John Alden Knight

The schedule of Solunar Periods as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

Christmas:

Christmas is celebrated in all Christian countries as the birthday of Christ. The name Christmas comes from the early English term Christes Mass, which means Christ's Mass. It is used only in English speaking countries. In most of Europe, the day is known as "Christ's Birthday."

Scandinavian countries still use the pagan name "Yule Day" and Germany and Switzerland observe "Holy Night." The date for Christmas in most lands is Dec. 25. It is marked by religious services, by the exchange of gifts and by merrymaking.

No one knows definitely when the Christmas festival was first celebrated. It is spoken of in the 400's by Clement of Alexandria. Chrysostom speaks of it in the 380's as a custom of long standing. Other dates were often celebrated as the day of the Nativity but in the year 354, by order of Bishop Liberius of Rome, Dec. 25 was adopted. It was noted later that this date would fall within the rainy season in Palestine, so that the shepherds would hardly have been in the fields at night as they were when Jesus was born.

The early church fathers probably chose Dec. 25 because the feast of the sun, or winter solstice, was a familiar Roman feast celebrating the victory of light over darkness. This idea was easily turned from a pagan to a Christian one, since Christians consider Christ as the light of life.

Overhaul of Income Tax Laws Planned

By GORDON BROWN
Associated Press Special Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—If Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) can swing it—and he'll have a big voice in the matter—a major overhaul job will be done on the federal income tax laws in the next three years.

His goal is to broaden the tax base and at the same time cut rates.

This means he wants more people to pay taxes on more of their income but at considerably lower rates than in effect today.

Mills contends there are too many loopholes in the present tax laws and that, as a result, too much income escapes taxation, thus throwing an unfair load on other taxpayers.

Why not tax all or most of the income and lower the rates, he asks?

In referring to loopholes, Mills isn't just talking about deductions claimed by big businessmen. He includes deductions taken by average taxpayers.

These include contributions to charity, interest, taxes, business expenses, certain capital gains, investment income and the like.

The cumulative effect of all of these exemptions, deductions and other loopholes is shown pointedly by the dry statistics.

Take 1953.

In this year total income of $100,000,000,000

was reduced to $70,000,000,000

by deductions and exemptions.

That leaves $30,000,000,000

on which taxes are paid.

That's a 70 per cent reduction.

It would make for a simple tax return, he said, and would eliminate a lot of taxpaying wrestling which many taxpayers do along about April 15 each year as they calculate deductions and exemptions.

Mills is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee—the tax writing committee—which recently began a series of hearings reviewing the whole tax structure.

But Mills isn't looking for any major tax reform legislation in 1954.

"It takes two sessions of Congress, history shows, to enact major tax legislation," he said, "so there is no chance of starting a bill or bills through Congress until the first session of a new Congress in 1955."

However, he said, the present hearings are a start on the big job.

"These hearings are to show us the special preferences and loopholes in the present law," he amounted to $30,000,000,000. But federal income taxes were paid on only $10,000,000,000 of this.

Thus no federal income taxes were paid on the bulk of this income—more than 200,000,000,000 of it.

Why wasn't this big chunk taxed?

Well, says Mills, it was like this: About 42 billion dollars represented income exempted by one reason or another from taxes; another 28 billion dollars was received by persons not required under law to file returns or by persons who should have but didn't file returns; about 18 billion dollars was excluded by personal exemptions, deductions and credits; about 77 billion dollars was excluded because of the standard personal exemption, an 80 billion dollars was untaxed under the standard 10 per cent deduction allowed.

"I do not suggest that all of the income which escaped tax should necessarily be taxed," Mills said. "For instance, no one seriously advocates elimination of the personal exemptions. But certainly we must study these others carefully and determine if we have the fairest possible tax with the lowest possible rates."

Mills said he believes there is general support over the country for a fairer tax, one with fewer loopholes. He said he has received many letters urging such a revision.

It would make for a simple tax return, he said, and would eliminate a lot of taxpaying wrestling which many taxpayers do along about April 15 each year as they calculate deductions and exemptions.

News Briefs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays and his wife have decided to make their permanent home in New York after encountering housing troubles in the San Francisco area.

The San Francisco Giants center fielder sold his house on fashionable Miraloma Drive to a corporation executive, a real estate dealer announced. The price was not disclosed.

The Negro baseball star bought the house in the all-white neighborhood for $37,500 in 1957 over the protest of some neighbors.

The only incident ever reported was when someone tossed a bottle through a window of the house after the Giants lost a baseball game. Mays said a note in the bottle made reference to his race.

After the 1959 season Mays and his wife looked for a home on the peninsula south of San Francisco but without success.

NEW YORK (AP)—A move to make parents responsible for destructive acts of their children has been killed by the City Board of Estimate. The board voted 18-4 Thursday against a local law, proposed by the City Council, to make parents liable up to $25 for vandalism by their children.

CHICAGO (AP)—Rosetta Duncan, 53, one of the famed Duncan Sisters, veteran vaudeville comedy team, died today of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Tuesday.

Miss Duncan, who suffered fractures of both legs, at least 10 ribs and internal injuries, died in MacNeal Memorial Hospital in suburban Berwyn. She had not regained consciousness since the accident about 3 a.m. Tuesday, hospital officials said.

Turks Give a Big Reception to President

By WEBB MCKINLEY

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—President Eisenhower took with him from Turkey today memories of the greatest reception ever given a foreign visitor to the Turkish capital.

Eisenhower himself termed the welcome he received on his arrival Sunday from Rome "the most stupendous I have ever seen."

Estimates of the crowds that cheered him ranged from a police figure of 400,000 to unofficial tallies of 700,000.

Bands played, men danced and properly shouted "yasha" (long live) as the President went by, standing bareheaded in an open limousine. His arms were outstretched in greeting.

Eisenhower responded enthusiastically to this outpouring of spirit.

"I am confident," he told Turkish President Celal Bayar at a state dinner Sunday night, "that the United States, with other friends and allies, will continue to support the economic development and security of Turkey."

"I am certain this combined effort will be successful because no power on earth, no evil, no threat can frustrate a people of your spirit."

Istanbul newspapers hailed the first visit by an American president to Turkey as history-making.

Press secretary James Hagerty told newsmen Eisenhower was completely overwhelmed by the welcome he got and the scores of signs on triumphal arches lining his route.

The one that impressed the President most said, in English, "Welcome like to your second home."

A joint communique summarizing Eisenhower's talks with Bayar, Premier Adnan Menderes and other Turkish leaders cited the warmth of feeling the American executive found.

The communique said Bayar and Eisenhower agreed that any easing of tensions could not be one-sided.

The statement also urged an "effective controlled system of disarmament" and declared the "future of humanity" depends on solidarity among the free nations, solidarity among the free nations.

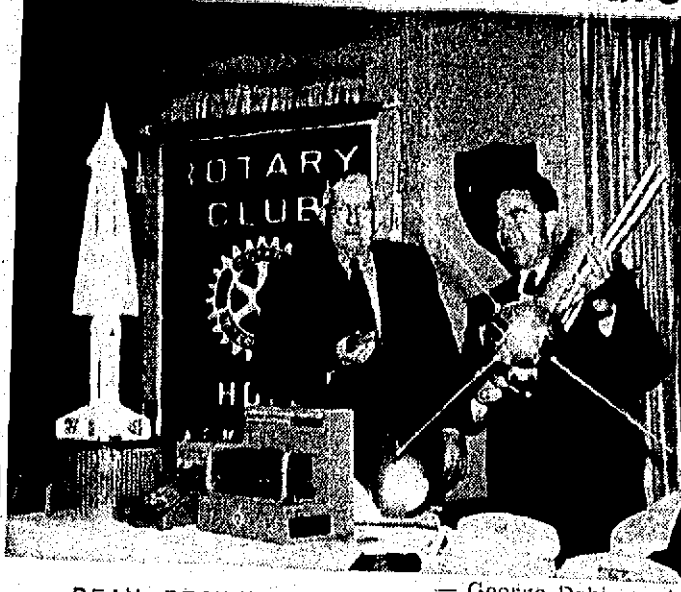

The population of Ontario has increased 50 per cent since the end of World War II.

said, "We must know and want to know all about the present law and how it is applied. Once we know this we can see what, if anything, we can do to make it fairer."

"I hope we can find enough to revise the rate structure from top to bottom."

Mills concedes it will be a difficult job since various groups will be reluctant to give up tax benefits they now enjoy.

OO THE HOSTAGE

BY CHARLES HENRY
Copyright 1953 by Charles Henry Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Davey Cleaves, neglected on moving day, is a step amid the furniture on the moving van where he crawled out of curiosity. His parents have not yet missed him.

Chapter VII
In the now unbroken darkness Davey was jolted, as if by an abrupt clasp of thunder, into instant wakefulness and fright.

For a moment, robbed of memory by the drumming of his own heart, he was unable to think exactly where he was or why he found himself in darkness. After a bit, however, it came back to him, and his fright began to recede.

Even as he had dozed and finally slept in the warm, insulated interior of the divan, he had been dimly aware of the frequent comings and goings of the movers. Therefore, still unaware that the sound which had awakened him had been the slamming of the doors, it now occurred to him that they had piled the furniture so solidly around him they had sealed out the light. Since he did not believe he had been asleep for more than a few minutes, he saw his only problem was the one of finding his way out to the mouth of the van. From that point he would easily be able to escape into the apartment house unnoticed.

His fright now gone, Davey pulled himself up into a sitting position and reached out, feeling for the opening through which he had entered. Evidently in arranging the rest of the furniture inside the van, the movers had shoved the chairs back more tightly against the wall. Davey could barely get his hand into the opening. Seized instantly by a new and more primitive fear of entrapment, he lunged forward and shoved against the chair with all his might. He felt the chair budge a little and his panic subsided. Pausing for a moment, he realized that, actually, after his nap inside the divan, he felt much better about everything. Turning back to the chair, he decided he would try again to move it and then, if it came to that, he would simply wait until the movers returned and call out to them for help.

He had just arrived at this decision when, with a sudden deafening roar, the air itself seemed to explode around him. The furniture groaned and creaked in protest. Beneath his numb foot, the chair jolted forward and then was taken with a slight but steady trembling.

Miss Mabry turned from the window. The gray half-light from outside, falling obliquely upon her softly molded features, made her look, just for the moment, almost girlish. In her attitude, however, there was something faintly artificial. One hand outstretched in a gesture of prim, maidenly surprise, her head inclined slightly at an angle of listening, she seemed to have struck a pose before some vast unseen audience. Why did they always come knocking in that jarring way?

As if through narrowed eyes, Miss Mabry had spent the better part of her 58 years subjecting humanity in general and people in particular to an exceedingly close and critical examination. Humanity was detestable. People were filthy. As a maiden lady alone, living in "retirement" on an inherited income, she was in a position to know.

Miss Mabry's hand fell flutteringly to her side as if in helpless exasperation. It was past time for the post, and she hadn't called Mr. McCracken for anything. That meant it had to be one of the tenants. But why should any of

Bill forced a shrug of unconcern. "Maybe Davey went down to Miss Mabry's. We gave him a pretty last shuffle this morning; he probably wanted to see somebody who had a little time for him."

Carol's anxious expression relaxed somewhat. "He knows he's not supposed to visit her without telling me."

"I'll go down to Miss Mabry's and see if he's there." Carol crossed to the door. "Meanwhile, if you feel like it, you can get the rest of the stuff out of the closet and carry it into the hall."

"Sure," Bill said. "But take it easy on Davey, huh? I was pretty sore with him downstairs."

Carol nodded and hurried out of the apartment. Descending one flight to the second floor, she went along the hallway to the door that corresponded with the one she had just closed behind her upstairs. As she approached she knew how. Not really for Davey's benefit, but for Miss Mabry's. It was all right if Davey was there—he had been permitted to visit Miss Mabry on occasions—but if that middle-aged old witch had stuffed Davey with pastry when he hadn't even eaten breakfast yet—Drawing up before the door, she reached out and rapped smartly, producing a quick staccato sound that almost exactly expressed her present state of irritation.

Miss Mabry turned from the window. The gray half-light from outside, falling obliquely upon her softly molded features, made her look, just for the moment, almost girlish. In her attitude, however, there was something faintly artificial. One hand outstretched in a gesture of prim, maidenly surprise, her head inclined slightly at an angle of listening, she seemed to have struck a pose before some vast unseen audience. Why did they always come knocking in that jarring way?

As if through narrowed eyes, Miss Mabry had spent the better part of her 58 years subjecting humanity in general and people in particular to an exceedingly close and critical examination. Humanity was detestable. People were filthy. As a maiden lady alone, living in "retirement" on an inherited income, she was in a position to know.

Miss Mabry's hand fell flutteringly to her side as if in helpless exasperation. It was past time for the post, and she hadn't called Mr. McCracken for anything. That meant it had to be one of the tenants. But why should any of

Bill forced a shrug of unconcern. "Maybe Davey went down to Miss Mabry's. We gave him a pretty last shuffle this morning; he probably wanted to see somebody who had a little time for him."

Carol's anxious expression relaxed somewhat. "He knows he's not supposed to visit her without telling me."

"I'll go down to Miss Mabry's and see if he's there." Carol crossed to the door. "Meanwhile, if you feel like it, you can get the rest of the stuff out of the closet and carry it into the hall."

"Sure," Bill said. "But take it easy on Davey, huh? I was pretty sore with him downstairs."

Carol nodded and hurried out of the apartment. Descending one flight to the second floor, she went along the hallway to the door that corresponded with the one she had just closed behind her upstairs. As she approached she knew how. they want to come bothering her? She went to the door and, just as the knocking started again, pulled it open.

Looking up into the stern young face of Carol Cleaves, Miss Mabry suffered a faint shock of surprise.

There had been occasions when Miss Mabry, upon waylaying Mrs. Cleaves in the hallway to warn her against the weak and unattractive characters of her neighbors and friends, had suffered the insult of having that high-handed young woman practically turn on her heel and walk away. But worse than that was the matter of little Davey. Davey Cleaves was mistreated. It was nothing she had actually seen, but Miss Mabry knew.

Shorter Super Road Segments Planned

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Highway Department has been building fairly long sections of interstate routes, but hereafter it plans shorter segments in areas of heaviest traffic concentration.

That's the word from Chief Engineer Ward Gidman, who reported that 51 miles of interstate road already is in use.

The new approach will have the effect of spreading work along the three interstate routes. Construction has been concentrated so far around Little Rock and in northeast Arkansas.

"Let's put it this way, 'Good-man said, 'We're going to build bypasses and overpasses and then fill the gaps."
